

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON
AT SEATTLE

KARL K. KEONE, an individual,

Plaintiff,

v.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Defendant.

Case No. C13-419RSM

ORDER ON CROSS MOTIONS FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

THIS MATTER comes before the Court on Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment (Dkt. # 20) and Plaintiff's cross Motion for Partial Summary Judgment (Dkt. # 22). Having considered the parties' memoranda, supporting declarations and exhibits, and the remainder of the record, the Court denies Defendant's motion for summary judgment and grants partial summary judgment in favor of Plaintiff on the issue of liability for the reasons stated herein.

BACKGROUND

This action arises from a motor vehicle accident involving Plaintiff, Karl Keone, and United States Postal Service ("USPS") driver Stacey Christian, occurring at the intersection of West Marginal Place and 27th Avenue South in Tukwila, Washington on August 19, 2011. At the time of the collision, Keone was returning from Sea-Tac International Airport in his girlfriend's

1 1991 Nissan when he exited Northbound SR 599 at West Marginal Place and South 102nd Street
2 at approximately 7:30am. Dkt. # 23, Ex. 3 (Christian Dep.), p. 20; Dkt. # 1 (Compl.), ¶ 5; Dkt. #
3 9 (Answer), ¶ 5. At the same time, Christian was returning to the USPS distribution center,
4 roughly one block south of the intersection, at the close of his usual graveyard shift. Id. Christian
5 was traveling on South 102nd Street toward the intersection with West Marginal Place on his 6 right and 27th Avenue South on his left.<sup>1</sup> It is undisputed that Christian struck Keone's vehicle,
7 which was traveling straight through the intersection from the SR 599 off ramp onto South 102nd
8 Street, as Christian attempted a lefthand turn onto 27th Avenue South. Dkt. # 20, p. 3; Compl., ¶
9 9.
10

11 As Christian approached the intersection of South 102nd Street and 27th Avenue South,
12 his traffic signal was red. Dkt. # 21, Ex. D (Christian Dep.), p. 24. He was nearly at a complete
13 stop when the signal turned green, at which point he spotted Keone's vehicle exiting the freeway
14 with his left turn signal activated. Id. at p. 26. Christian testified that he believed that Keone
15 intended to turn left onto West Marginal Place, though he could not recall Keone actually 16 initiating a lefthand turn at the intersection. Id. at pp. 26, 32. As Christian began to execute his 17 lefthand turn, he saw Keone starting to come through the intersection looking to the left onto 18 West Marginal Place with his left turn signal still lighted. Id. at p. 31. Christian applied the 19 brakes when he realized that Keone was not executing a lefthand turn and was instead heading 20 straight through the intersection. Though Christian estimates that his speed was only 10 miles per 21 hour, he was unable to avoid the accident. Id. at p. 34.
22
23
24
25
26

27 <sup>1</sup> West Marginal Place becomes 27th Avenue South as it crosses the intersection with South 102nd Street. See Dkt. #
28 21, Ex. 2.

1 Keone testified that he had activated his left turn signal in order to signal his switch from 2 a right-turn-only lane on the righthand side of the exit ramp into a combination straight/left-turn
3 lane on the lefthand side of the exit ramp. Dkt. # 21, Ex. A (Keone Dep.), p. 16. Keone estimated
4 his speed at approximately 35 miles per hour as he entered the intersection. Id. Keone recalled
5 briefly looking to a Highway 99 sign on his left as he entered the intersection. Id. at pp. 20-21.
6 He looked back just in time to collide with Christian's USPS truck and did not apply his brakes
7 before making contact. Id. Keone testified that Christian had not activated his left turn signal and 8 that Keone accordingly believed that Christian intended to proceed straight through the 9 intersection. Id. at p. 17. Christian, by contrast, testified that he had activated his left turn signal
10 prior to arriving at the traffic light. Christian Dep. at p. 25.
11

13 It is undisputed that Keone and Christian were the only two witnesses to the accident.
14 Tukwila Police Officer Gary Leavitt arrived at the accident scene at 7:35am, approximately two 15 minutes after the collision, and took oral statements from both drivers. Leavitt prepared a Traffic
16 Collision Report based on these interviews and issued citations to Keone for failing to yield the 17 right of way and for driving with a suspended license. See Dkt. # 21, Ex's. B-C. Christian also 18 called his supervisor, Daronda Lowe, who spoke with the drivers and prepared a standard USPS
19 Motor Vehicle Accident Report and Accident Investigation Worksheet. Id. at Ex. E.
20

21 Plaintiff brings this action under the Federal Tort Claims Act ("FTCA"), 28 U.S.C. §
22 1346(b), seeking to recover for the alleged negligence of Christian while acting within the scope
23 of his federal employment. Defendant filed a counterclaim asserting that the accident was instead 24 caused by Plaintiff's negligence and that Keone is therefore liable for damages incurred by 25 Christian. The Court has since granted the parties' stipulated dismissal of the United States'
26 counterclaim. Dkt. # 19. The parties now seek to resolve Plaintiff's negligence claim through the 27
28

1 instant cross motions for summary judgment. Defendant seeks dismissal of Plaintiff's Complaint
2 in its entirety with prejudice (Dkt. # 20), while Plaintiff seeks the Court's ruling in his favor as to 3 liability, reserving the issue of damages for trial (Dkt. # 22).

4 STANDARD OF REVIEW

5 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 56(a) permits parties to move for summary judgment on 6 all or part of their claims. Summary judgment is proper where "the movant shows that there is no
7 genuine dispute as to any material fact and the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of 8 law." Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a); Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 247 (1986). Material
9 facts are those that may affect the outcome of the suit under governing law. Id. at 248. An issue
10 of material fact is genuine "if the evidence is such that a reasonable jury could return a verdict
11 for the nonmoving party." Id. In ruling on a motion for summary judgment, the court does "not 12 weigh the evidence or determine the truth of the matter but only determine[s] whether there is a 13 genuine issue for trial." Crane v. Conoco, 41 F.3d 547, 549 (internal citations omitted).

14 The moving party bears the initial burden of production and the ultimate burden of 15 persuasion. Nissan Fire & Marine Ins. Co., Ltd. v. Fritz Companies, Inc., 210 F.3d 1099, 1102
16 (9th Cir. 2000). The moving party must initially establish the absence of a genuine issue of 17 material fact. Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 322 (1986). The nonmoving party defeats a 18 motion for summary judgment if she "produces enough evidence to create a genuine issue of 19 material fact." Nissan Fire, 969 F.2d at 1103. By contrast, the moving party is entitled to 20 summary judgment where "the nonmoving party has failed to make a sufficient showing on an 21 essential element of her case with respect to which she has the burden of proof" at trial. Celotex, 22 477 U.S. at 322. Assertions of fact must be supported by citation to materials in the record, such 23 as depositions, affidavits, or declarations. Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c)(1). "[T]he inferences to be drawn
24
25
26
27
28

1 from the underlying facts...must be viewed in the light most favorable to the party opposing the 2 motion.” Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 587 (1986). However,
 3 conclusory or speculative testimony is insufficient to raise a genuine issue of fact to defeat
 4 summary judgment. Anheuser-Busch, Inc. v. Natural Beverage Distributors, 60 F.3d 337, 345
 5 (9th Cir. 1995).

7 ANALYSIS

8 A. Motions to Strike

9 As an initial matter, the Court considers Plaintiff’s Motion to Strike certain materials
 10 relied on by Defendant in support of its request for summary judgment. Dkt. # 24, pp. 11-17. In 11 ruling on a summary judgment motion, the Court is restricted to considering evidence that is 12 admissible. Orr v. Bank of America, NT & SA, 285 F.3d 764, 773 (9th Cir. 2002). A party may 13 object that material cited to support or dispute a fact is inadmissible in evidence. Fed. R. Civ. P.
 14 56(c)(2). “The burden is on the proponent to show that the material is admissible as presented or 15 to explain the admissible form that is anticipated.” Advisory Committee Notes, 2010
 16 Amendments to Subdivision (c).

17 Plaintiff first seeks to exclude as inadmissible hearsay the Police Traffic Collision Report
 18 and citations written by Tukwila Police Department Officer Leavitt (Dkt. # 21, Ex. B) and the 19 traffic accident report of Daronda Lowe (Id. at Ex. D). Hearsay is defined as a statement that “the 20 declarant does not make while testifying at the current trial or hearing” and which “a party offers 21 in evidence to prove the truth of the matter asserted in the statement.” FRE 801(c). Hearsay is 22 inadmissible unless it is defined as non-hearsay under Federal Rule of Evidence 801(d), it falls
 23 within a delineated exception under the Federal Rules of Evidence, or a federal statute or rule
 24 prescribed by the Supreme Court provides otherwise. FRE 802; Orr, 285 F.3d at 778.

1 The Court agrees with Plaintiff that Exhibits B and D constitute inadmissible hearsay for 2 the purpose of Defendant's summary judgment motion. In the cited portions of Leavitt's report
 3 and declaration, Leavitt states that Keone told him that he had intended to turn northbound on 4 West Marginal Place and initiated this turn before changing his mind. Leavitt Dep. at p. 12.
 5 These materials are offered to prove the truth of the matter asserted as to Keone's actions and 6 intentions are therefore inadmissible hearsay. Leavitt's report is additionally subject to exclusion
 7 under RCW 46.52.080, which specifically renders inadmissible such required accident reports
 8 for use in evidence in any trial. See RCW 46.52.080 ("No such accident report or copy thereof
 9 shall be used in evidence in any trial, civil or criminal, arising out of an accident...."). Lowe's 10 declaration and report are similarly inadmissible, as they are offered solely to prove the truth of 11 the matter asserted in Keone's statements regarding his intention to turn left. See Dkt. # 20, p. 9.<sup>2</sup>
 12 The fact of Leavitt's traffic citations, and his opinion on Plaintiff's negligence implied therein, is 13 also inadmissible, as it improperly injects the officer's opinion "involv[ing] the very matter to be 14 determined by the jury." Warren v. Hart, 71 Wash.2d 512, 514, 429 P.2d 873 (1967) (en banc), 15 citing Billington v. Schaal, 42 Wash.2d 878, 882 (1953).<sup>3</sup> All of these materials shall be stricken
 16 pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 56(c)(2) and shall not be considered for the purpose
 17 of summary judgment.
 18

19 Plaintiff's request to strike the expert report by John Hunter (Dkt. # 21, Ex. F) presents a 20 more difficult matter. Hunter is an accredited collision reconstructionist whose report documents 21 his findings and opinions drawn from a simulation of the collision. Plaintiff does not object to 22 Hunter's general qualifications but nonetheless asks the Court to strike Hunter's report under 23

24 <sup>2</sup> Defendant fails to carry its burden to show that the declaration and reports of Lowe and Leavitt are admissible on 25 other grounds, such as through a Rule 803 exception to the rule against hearsay.

26 <sup>3</sup> Defendant also fails to show that Keone's citation for driving with a suspended license has any relevance to his 27 negligence claim. This citation is additionally excluded as irrelevant under Federal Rule of Evidence 402.
 28

1 Federal Rule of Evidence 702 on the grounds that it is not based on sufficient facts or data and is 2 not the product of reliable principles and methods.

3 Rule 702 of the Federal Rules of Evidence provides that expert testimony is admissible
4 “[i]f scientific, technical, or other specialized knowledge will assist the trier of fact to understand
5 the evidence or to determine a fact in issue.” The district court’s role as a gatekeeper “entails a 6 preliminary assessment of whether the reasoning or methodology underlying the testimony 7 is...valid and of whether that reasoning or methodology properly can be applied to the facts in 8 issue.” Daubert v. Merrell Dow Pharm., Inc., 409 U.S. 579, 592-93 (1993). “This duty to act as a 9 gatekeeper and to assure the reliability of proffered expert testimony before admitting it applies
10 to all (not just scientific) expert testimony.” Samuels v. Holland America Line-USA Inc., 656
11 F.3d 948, 952 (9th Cir. 2011)(internal citations and quotations omitted). The word “knowledge”
12 in this context “connotes more than subjective belief or unsupported speculation.” Id., citing
13 Daubert, 509 U.S. at 590. The court’s inquiry under Rule 702 is a “flexible” one, and the court
14 tailors its choice and application of the Daubert factors to the “nature of the issue, the expert’s 15 particular expertise, and the subject of his testimony.” Kumho Tire Co. v. Carmichael, 526 U.S.
16 137, 150 (1999) (internal quotation omitted); see also, Samuels, 656 F.3d at 952.

17 The Court does not agree that Hunter’s report need be stricken in its entirety. The 18 majority of the report consists of detailed descriptions of the crash site and conditions, the likely 19 speed of the vehicles, and the sequence of events based on the testimony of the drivers and data
20 about their vehicles. In general, the Court finds the reported results of the collision simulation to 21 be sufficiently reliable to be admissible with respect to the pending motions and that Plaintiff’s
22 concerns about gaps in Hunter’s analysis – such as his failure to measure Keone’s physiological
23 reaction time – go to the weight of this evidence rather than its admissibility. The Court, 24
25
26
27
28

1 however, agrees with Plaintiff that certain statements in the report must be stricken. First, the 2 diagram of the collision drawn from Leavitt's Collision Report and contained on page 2 of 3 Hunter's report shall be stricken, as the Court has already deemed it to be inadmissible hearsay.
4 In addition, the Court does not find Hunter to be qualified to opine about questions of law and 5 further finds his conclusion that "crossing a solid white lane line...is prohibited" to be factually
6 unsupported. The Court accordingly strikes this last sentence at the conclusion of the first
7 paragraph of page 4 of the report. Finally, the Court agrees with Plaintiff that Hunter is not 8 permitted to offer opinions that embrace ultimate conclusions as to the liability of the parties and 9 accordingly strikes Hunter's statements about proximate causation on page 6 of his report.
10

11 B. Liability for Negligence

12
13 The FTCA holds the United States Government vicariously liable for negligent acts and 14 omission of its employees while performing their duties in the course and scope of their 15 employment. 28 U.S.C. 1346(b). Negligence is to be determined "in accordance with the law of 16 the place where the act or omission occurred." Id.; see also 28 U.S.C. § 2675 ("The United States
17 shall be liable...in the same manner and to the same extent as a private individual under like 18 circumstances, but shall not be liable for interest prior to judgment or for punitive damages."). It
19 is undisputed that Christian was acting within the scope and course of his Government
20 employment when the subject collision occurred and that Washington law applies with respect to 21 liability.

24 In order to recover for negligence, Keone has the burden to show that (1) Christian owed
25 him a duty, (2) Christian breached that duty, (3) an injury resulted, and (4) the breach was the 26 proximate cause of the injury. Lowman v. Wilbur, 178 Wn.2d 165, 169, 309 P.3d 387 (2013), 27 citing Crowe v. Gaston, 134 Wash.2d 509, 514 (1998). Under Washington law, all drivers
28

1 possess a duty to exercise ordinary care while operating a motor vehicle. Robison v. Simard, 57
2 Wash.2d 850, 851, 360 P.2d 153 (1961). A statute may also impose a duty additional to the duty
3 to exercise ordinary care, the violation of which constitutes negligence. Mathis v. Ammons, 84
4 Wash.App. 411, 416, 928 P.2d 431 (1996).

5 Here, this additional duty is set forth by RCW 46.61.185, which provides that “the driver
6 of a vehicle intending to turn left within an intersection...shall yield the right-of-way to any 7 vehicle approaching from the opposite direction which is within the intersection or so close
8 thereto as to constitute an immediate hazard.” Under this statute, Christian, as the “disfavored
9 driver,” has a duty to yield the right-of-way to Keone, the “favored driver.” See Mossman v.
10 Rowley, 154 Wash.App. 735, 741, 229 P.3d 812 (2009) (“The primary duty to avoid a collision is 11 on the disfavored driver.”); Yakoyama v. Anderson, 105 Wash.App. 1007, *1 (2001).

12 Defendant attempts to flip the negligence analysis on its head by arguing that Keone, 13 despite being the favored driver, was negligent in violating his duty of care to obey traffic
14 control devices when he switched lanes on the SR 599 off ramp prior to entering the subject
15 intersection. Defendant points to RCW 46.61.050(1) as the source of this duty. See RCWC
16 46.61.050(1) (providing that the driver of any vehicle “shall obey the instructions of any official 17 traffic control device applicable thereto”). Defendant’s argument is misplaced on several 18 grounds. First, Defendant offers no authority beyond Hunter’s stricken opinion for the 19 proposition that the “solid white line” crossed by Keone is a traffic control device contemplated
20 under the statute. As Plaintiff points out, Washington law instead merely “discourage[s]”
21 crossing solid white lane line markings prior to entering an intersection. Manual on Uniform
22 Traffic Control Devices (“MUTDC”), U.S. DOT Highway Division, § 3.B.20 (“Where crossing
23 the lane line markings is discouraged, the lane line markings shall consist of a normal or wide
25
26
27
28

1 solid white line.”).<sup>4</sup> Second, Defendant does not argue, nonetheless carry his burden to show,
2 that Plaintiff’s crossing of the solid white lane line proximately caused the collision. To the 3 contrary, Christian’s execution of a left turn served as an intervening cause. Further, Christian’s
4 principle duty to yield the right of way under RCW 46.61.185 does not hinge on whether Keone
5 was proceeding lawfully. See State v. Carty, 27 Wn.App. 715, 718, 620 P.2d 137 (Wash. App.
6 1980) (RCW 46.61.185 “contains no requirement that the State prove an oncoming vehicle was 7 proceeding lawfully.”); Hammel v. Rife, 37 Wash.App. 577, 583, 682 P.2d 949 (excessive speed
8 does not overcome ordinary duty to yield the right of way).

9
10       Though not framed in such terms, Defendant’s argument is best understood as an appeal 11 to “deception doctrine.” “[D]eception doctrine developed in order to cushion the harsh effects of 12 the negligence per se doctrine as applied to collision resulting from left turns at or between 13 intersections.” Hammel, 37 Wash.App. at 582. It is “applicable only where the favored driver has 14 by some wrongful driving conduct deceived a reasonably prudent disfavored driver into 15 believing that he or she can make a left turn with a fair margin of safety.” Id. It has been applied 16 in two situations: (1) where the disfavored driver sees the favored vehicle and is deceived by its 17 driver’s actions, and (2) where an obstruction conceals the favored driver from prudent view (the 18 “clear stretch of road” scenario). Id., citing Oliver v. Harvey, 31 Wash.App. 279, 283-84, 640
19 P.2d 1087, review denied, 97 Wash.2d 1020 (1982). There is no legal deception where the 20 disfavored driver “sees the favored driver only an instant before the collision.” Id. Excessive
21 speed alone is insufficient to submit the issue of deception to the jury. Tobias v. Rainwater, 71 22 Wn.2d 845, 853, 431 P.2d 156 (1967). Overall, application of the doctrine is “limited to those 23
25
26

27 <sup>4</sup> See WAC § 468-95-010 (providing that the MUTDC has been adopted by the Washington State Secretary of 28 Transportation).

1 situations where the favored driver's deception is 'tantamount to an entrapment, a deception of 2 such marked character as to lure a reasonably prudent driver to the illusion that he has a fair
3 margin of safety in proceeding.'" Id. at 582, quoting Mondor v. Rhoades, 63 Wash.2d 159, 167, 4 385 P.2d 722 (1963).

5 Defendant fails to proffer any admissible evidence to show that the deception doctrine
6 applies in this instance.<sup>5</sup> There can be no argument that Plaintiff's changing of lanes prior to 7 entering the intersection was "tantamount to an entrapment," id., particularly where it was not in 8 violation of traffic law. See Watts v. Dietrich, 1 Wash.App. 141, 460 P.2d 298 (1969) (rejecting 9 deception argument based on plaintiff's allegedly deceptive lane switching). While Defendant
10 argues that Keone induced Christian into believing that he was turning left by beginning to 11 initiate a left-hand turn, Defendant fails to bolster this speculative assertion. The only suggestion
12 that Keone had initiated such a turn is contained in the stricken reports, and Christian himself
13 admitted under oath that he could not recall Keone taking any such action. Christian Dep. at p.
14 32. Even if Keone did initially intend to turn onto West Marginal Place, the application of the 15 deception doctrine turns on his actions, not his intention. Further, even if Keone entered the 16 intersection with his left turn signal activated and his eyes to the left, these actions do not amount 17 to the level of entrapment necessary to displace the strong right of way owed to the favored 18 driver. See Watts, 1 Wash.App. at 146 ("Construing the right of way statutes, this court has many 19 times voiced the precept that the burden of avoiding a collision at a street intersection rests not 20 only primarily, but also heavily, on the driver who occupies the disfavored position....").
21
22
23
24
25

27 <sup>5</sup> As Christian admitted that he saw Keone prior to entering the intersection, there can be no argument that the "clear 28 stretch of road" scenario applies here.

As to the remaining elements of Plaintiff's negligence claim, Defendant fails to raise material issues of fact regarding proximate causation of Plaintiff's injuries sustained in the collision. Even if Keone executed an unlawful lane-switch, Christian's subsequent turn into Keone's lane served as the immediate cause of the collision. Relatedly, Defendant fails to carry its burden to make out a prima facie affirmative defense of contributory negligence on the part of Plaintiff.<sup>6</sup> Under Washington law,

“[a] favored driver is entitled to a reasonable reaction time after it becomes apparent in the exercise of due care that the disfavored driver will not yield the right-of-way. Until he has been allowed that reaction time, he is not chargeable with contributory negligence flowing from omissions or acts regarding his failure to observe or respond to the conduct of the disfavored driver.”

Poston, 77 Wn.2d at 335 (internal citation omitted); see also Tobias, 71 Wash.2d at 857 (“[A]fter he becomes aware that the right of way will not be yielded, a reasonable reaction time must be allowed the favored driver to permit him, in the exercise of due care, to act.”) Put differently, where a driver crosses into another's lane and thereby “create[s] an emergency situation which requires the first driver to take immediate evasive action, then if the time for taking such evasive action is too short to prevent the collision, the first driver as a matter of law cannot be held guilty of contributory negligence.” Boerner v. Lambert's Estate, 9 Wash.Apspd. 145, 150, 510 P.2d 1157 (1973). Under these circumstances, contributory negligence of the favored driver “cannot be determined by split-second computations of time and distance.” Id.; Loerch v. Miller, 150 Wash.App. 1018, *5 (Wash. App. 2009).

<sup>6</sup> Defendant's fourth affirmative defense asserts that Keone's “recovery is barred by the Washington law on comparative negligence.” Answer at p. 4. As Plaintiff points out, Washington is a comparative fault state rather than a pure contributory fault state. Under RCW § 4.22.005, “any contributory fault chargeable to the claimant diminishes proportionately the amount awarded as compensatory damages for an injury attributable to the claimant's contributory fault, but does not bar recovery.” Defendant's fourth affirmative defense shall accordingly be stricken pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(f). To the extent that Defendant advances a contributory negligence defense through its fifth affirmative defense, it fails to carry its burden to make a prima facie showing, as provided herein.

1 Washington courts routinely fail to credit a contributory negligence defense where the 2 favored driver had only seconds to react to an emergency situation created by the disfavored
3 driver. For instance, Division One in Boerner found error in instructing the jury to consider the 4 favored driver's contributory negligence where she had under four seconds to react to the 5 disfavored driver's execution of a left turn into her lane. See Boerner, 9 Wash.App. at 152.
6 Similarly, Division Three in Kilde, found that plaintiffs were not contributorily negligent where 7 they had about two seconds to react to a pickup truck turning left into the path of their car. See
8 Kilde v. Sorwak, 1 Wash.App. 742, 463 P.2d 265 (1970).

9
10 In the instant case, drawing all inferences in Defendant's favor and crediting its expert's
11 estimation that Keone was traveling between 20 to 25 miles per hour at the time of the collision,
12 Keone had less than two seconds to react upon entering the intersection at the point that Christian
13 began to execute his turn. See Dkt. # 21, Ex. F, p. 5 ("Regardless of the approach speed, the time
14 it took the Nissan to reach the point of impact once it began to enter the intersection would have 15 been 2 seconds or less."). This is so even if Plaintiff was negligent in looking to his left and 16 thereby failing to spot Christian when he first began to execute his turn. Defendant's own
17 calculations show that Plaintiff necessarily had insufficient time to take evasive action. Plaintiff 18 is thus shielded from contributory negligence.

20 Plaintiff has accordingly made out a prima facie case of liability, which Defendant has 21 failed to rebut through any admissible evidence. Defendant has also failed to carry its burden to 22 make a prima facie showing of its affirmative defenses. Drawing all inferences in Defendant's
23 favor, no genuine issue of material fact precludes a finding of summary judgment in Plaintiff's 24 favor on his negligence claim.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons stated herein, the Court hereby ORDERS that Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment (Dkt. # 20) is DENIED and Plaintiff's Motion for Partial Summary Judgment (Dkt. # 22) is GRANTED. The Court finds that Plaintiff is entitled to partial summary judgment as a matter of law on the issue of liability. This case shall proceed toward trial solely on the issue of damages.

Dated this 21st day of November 2014.
